MISTAKE WAGES FOR PROFITS

Grave Error That Is Made by Most People Who Are Working for a Salary.

When our wage-earners and salaried people begin to learn that savings are profits and that the process of accumulating savings is substantially the same as getting profits out of a business, we shall be on the way to becoming a thrifty people.

But very few wage and salary earners know this.

Their mental process, to the very limited extent that their minds enter into the matter at all, is to regard the pay check as profits, which is, of course, a very fundamental mistake.

In the business of wage-earning the pay check is no more profits than is the cash that comes over the counter of a store or through the receiving teller's window at a bank.

A wage-earner's pay check is the gross receipts, and his profits, if there be any, are found by deducting from these gross receipts whatever it costs to keep the wage-earner going.

In business it is well understood that there are just two ways to increase profits: either more money must come in over the counter, or else less must be paid out in keeping up the business. So with the wage-earner. If he fails to save he must fit himself for a better job or else lower his standard of living; there is no other way.—Carl Marshall in the Thrift Magazine.

HERE'S A PUNCTUATION TEST

Make Sense of This Jumble and Prove That Your Think Tank Is Working Properly.

Can you punctuate? No, I am not going to ask you to punctuate the well-worn phrase, "It is and that I said not but"—you probably know how to do that already; but I have received an amusing communication from a reader showing how important a part punctuation can play in making sense of what we write, says a writer in London Answers. Without punctuation the following paragraph reads somewhat nonsensically, but if you put in the correct punctuation marks you can turn the sentences into sense:

"Daily the sun sets in a bucket down in this valley primroses can be seen, growing inside the piano are strings of dough bread is made and baked on top of the mountain it is cool in the spring time waits for no woman neither man will wait long to quench the thirst of the thirsty even on a wet day our stewards can give a good and substantial remedy for the gout in toes is a terrible sore thing when trodden on even a worm will turn on carrots carrot seeds will grow on turnips are leaves of iron tools are made for Moses was the daughter of Pharaoh's son and likewise was the son of Pharaoh's daughter."

Credit to Napoleon.

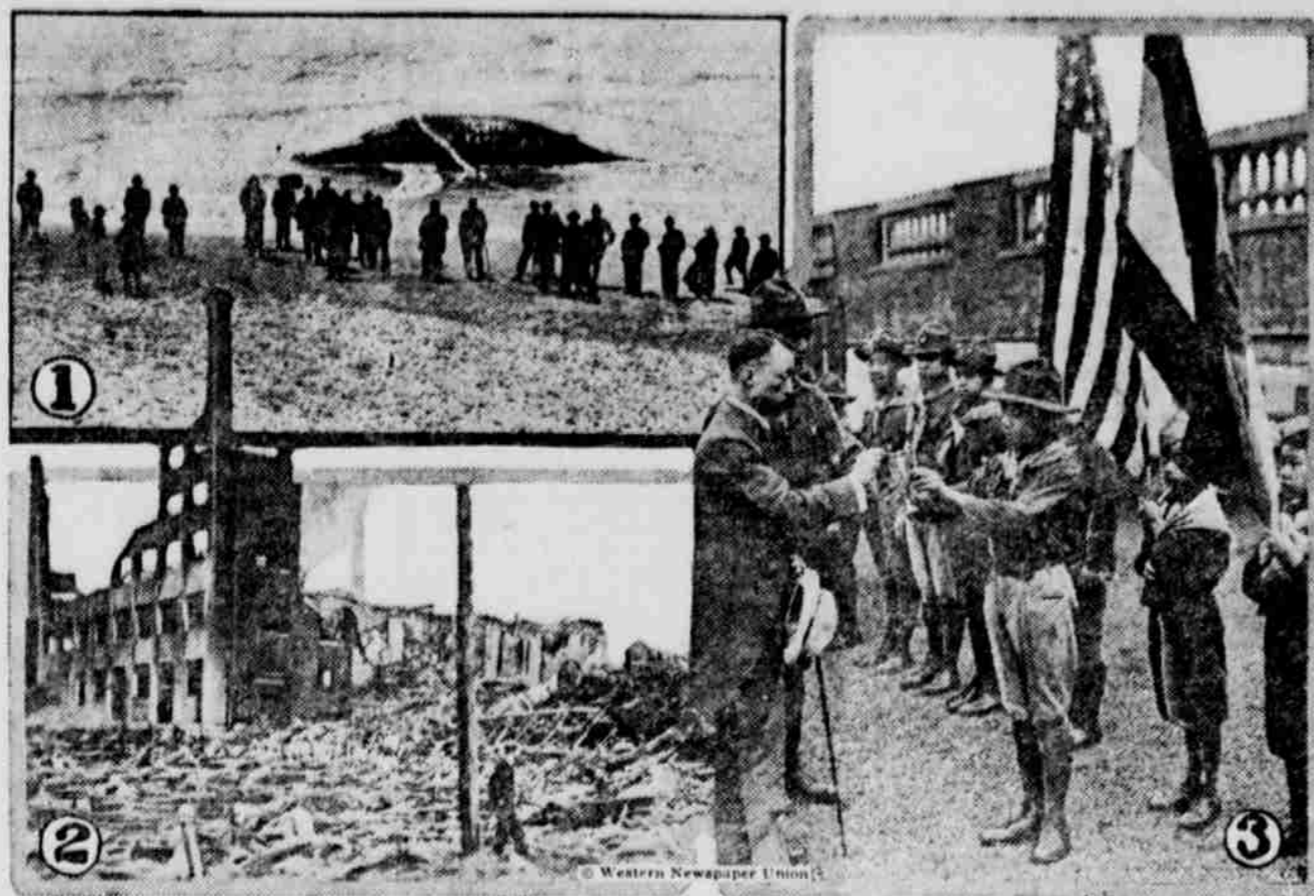

The glory of definitely completing the Louvre was reserved for Napoleon III; the activity he displayed in carrying out this plan compensates to some slight extent for other disastrous episodes of his reign. On the 14th of August, 1857, Napoleon III opened the at last completed Louvre. Two marble slabs commemorated the building of the great French monument, one of the most perfect expressions of the artistic genius of the race. On one of the slabs, which is still in existence, are inscribed the words: "François I began the Louvre, Catherine de Medici commenced the Tuilleries." On the other marble slab, which has since been removed, it was stated: "1852-1857, Napoleon III joined the Tuilleries to the Louvre."

Curling, like its sister Scottish game of golf, has its own vocabulary. Here is a dialogue in which a Scot in the Antipodes tried to illustrate the "kittle pints" of the game to his New Zealand friends. "What's a patlid, Mr. Macpherson?" asked an inexperienced member of the venerable "sklp." "Div ye no see, ye gowk?" said the skip. "Ye ding yer stane cannily, but nea snee fine as the hog it. Nea halfin' flez, nor jinkin' turn, ye ken, but tentley, that it aye gane anovvin' an' straght as an elder'd walk, hog-smotherin' among the guards, till ye fun on the verra tee. When ye've done that, intill, ye've made a patlid, and ye may hear the gree!"

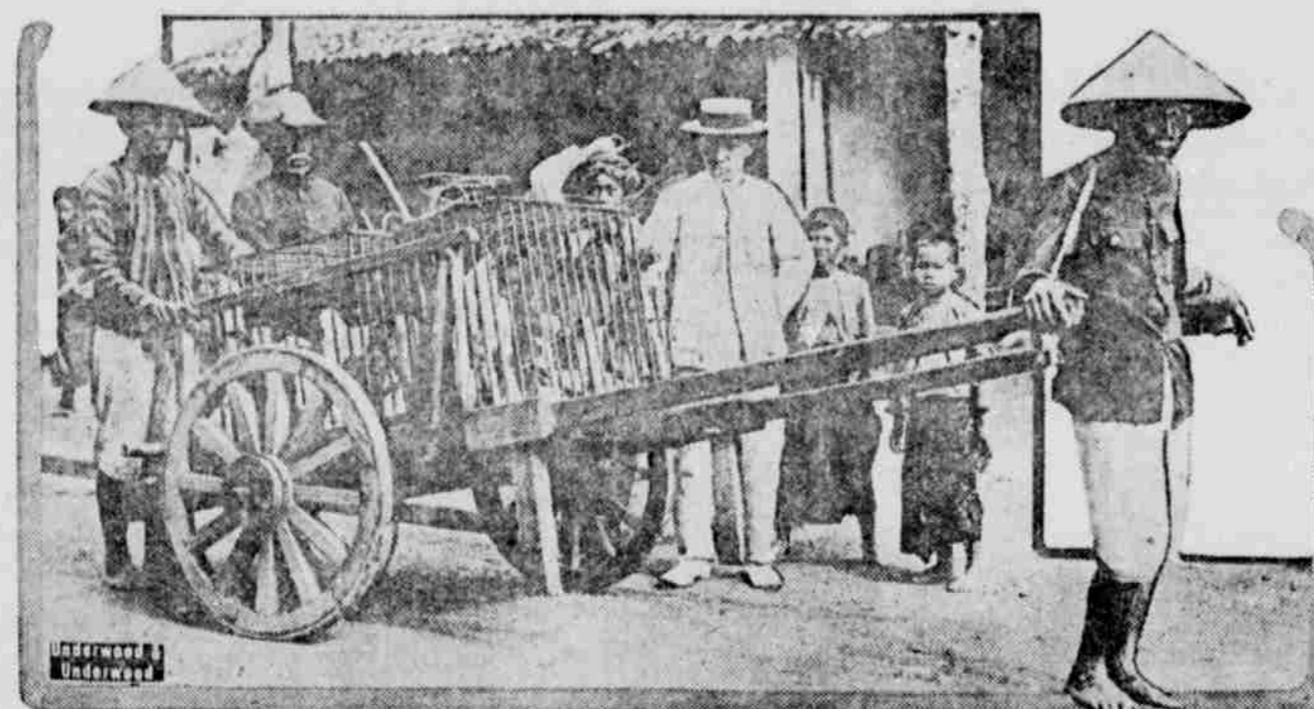

Alexandria.

Alexandria, founded by the world conqueror, Alexander the Great, is an Egyptian city that is eager to lose its connection with the faraway past and become completely modernized. Fate has favored this ambition, for the wonders that Cleopatra knew have been eaten by fire or swept away by the sea. Alexandria is a city of trade and fashion, dominated by prosperous Europeans too deeply absorbed in the stock exchange to be even vaguely interested in the romantic side of their city.

Would Attend to Moisture.

Little daughter objected to rain, and one rainy day complained so much that her mother reproved her, explaining the necessity of moisture to the grass and flowers.

That night, to her usual prayer she appended the following:

"And, dear Lord, do not let it rain tomorrow. If we need it, we'll sprinkle."—

"Howdy, Gap!" saluted an acquaintance, upon meeting the well known Rumpus Ridge citizen on a shopping expedition in Tumlinville. "How's everything going with you?"

"Finer'n frog hair, Jurd!" triumphantly replied Gap Johnson. "Of course, my wife has been sorter puny, yur of late, and several of the children have got the measles and mumps and one thing and another, and the lightning struck the corner of the house tuther night and like to have tore the whole place to pieces, and one of the kids fell out of a tree and broke his arm, and a feller took a shot at me day before yesterday and ventilated my ear, and such as that, but I swopped for a running horse last week, and a couple of my hounds have got six pups apiece. Aw, I tell you, they can't keep a good man down!"—Kansas City Star.

He looked at me in round-eyed wonder and his pink cheeks fairly stuck out.

"You don't know my pa?" he said incredulously. "Why, I know pa just as easy!"—Exchange.

KNOW THAT WOULD STOP HIM

Lawyer Evidently Was Well Acquainted With the Weakness of His Long-Winded Friend.

C. H. Murphy relates the story of a Philadelphia lawyer, retired, who, in the days of his active practice, was notorious for his long-windedness.

On one occasion he had been spouting forth his concluding argument for six hours, and the end was nowhere in sight, when the opposing attorney beckoned his associate and whispered:

"Can't you stop him, Jack?"

"I'll stop him in two minutes," Jack replied confidently. And he wrote and passed to the orator the following note:

"My Dear Colonel—As soon as you finish your magnificent argument I would like you to join me at the hotel in a bumper of rare old Bourbon."

The lawyer halted in the midst of an impassioned period, put on his glasses, and read the note that had been handed him, then he removed his glasses again and, taking up his hat and bag, he said:

"And now, may it please the court and gentlemen of the jury, I leave the case with you."

A minute later he was proceeding in stately fashion in the direction of the hotel bar.
